In Appreciation, We Dedicate

The past three years at Oxon Hill have been a profitable and enjoyable experience for the 1964 graduating class.

Participating in the group activities of our class was an important part of our high school life. We realize that without the advice of our sponsor, Mr. Louis Arnold, the success of these three years could not have been achieved. Though not often acknowledged, the time and effort Mr. Arnold has given to us has been greatly appreciated. Our gratitude goes also to Mr. Joseph Lynn and Mr. Joseph Kessler for their assistance in organizing our senior class activities.

We, the graduating class, dedicate to Mr. Arnold, Mr. Lynn, and Mr. Kessler the 1964 CLIPPER'S LOG.

Mr. Joseph Kessler and Mr. Joseph Lynn, who have assisted in making our senior year a success, pose after a senior class officers' meeting.

A tide of graduates slips silently into the sea of life. On the crest of the next wave ride new hopes, concepts, and ideals. As the waters wash away, they leave on the shore memories of dreams that have become realities and innovations that have become tradition.

The surge on which the year began has diminished into a receding stream. It carries with it an interval of learning, never to be known again except in the thoughts of those who experienced it, the students and faculty of Oxon Hill Senior High School.

Though the treasures of the year are now buried in an ocean of the past, traces of it remain in this, the 1964 CLIPPER'S LOG.

Preparation for Great

The school, the classroom, and the teacher become a compass to the student as they join in directing him through new channels of learning and experiencing. The guidance and knowledge that is bestowed upon the student during his high school education prepare him for the days after graduation when he must stand alone against the storms of life.

Karen Dutch arranges an eye-catching bulletin board to advertise "Thieves' Carnival."

The boys' home economics class looks on as the nursery school set sits playing a game

the Future Yields Rewards

Variation in each class gives the student a fresh approach to learning. Activity and participation, once goals of education, are now instruments of knowledge and instill in the pupil appreciation of literature and science, of mathematics and art.

The balcony of the gym is converted into an apparatus area when the physical education classes take to the trampolines for both fun and exercise

World geography enables Judy Bogdanowicz, Cathie Banks, and Wayne Maske to learn the customs of foreign countries as well as their topographical features.

An industrial arts student works diligently on a project in woodshop.

High School Experiences Steer the Student to Maturity

High spirits and enthusiasm offset the confusion and sadness that sometimes become student sentiments. During high school the student becomes familiar not only with the historical facts and chemical formulas that are taught in the classroom but also with the emotions that he will encounter throughout his life. He experiences loyalty, excitement, and anticipation, along with sorrow and anxiety, and from each he gains a greater understanding of the complete education that his school has provided for him.

With pompons flaring, Debbie Owen leads the school in a cheer for the football team

Bewildered by the discussion, Harold Cummings overturns his books in the search for an assignment

Shouts and cheers fill the center courtyard as students become initiated to a level of seniority.

Principal Gives Annual Message

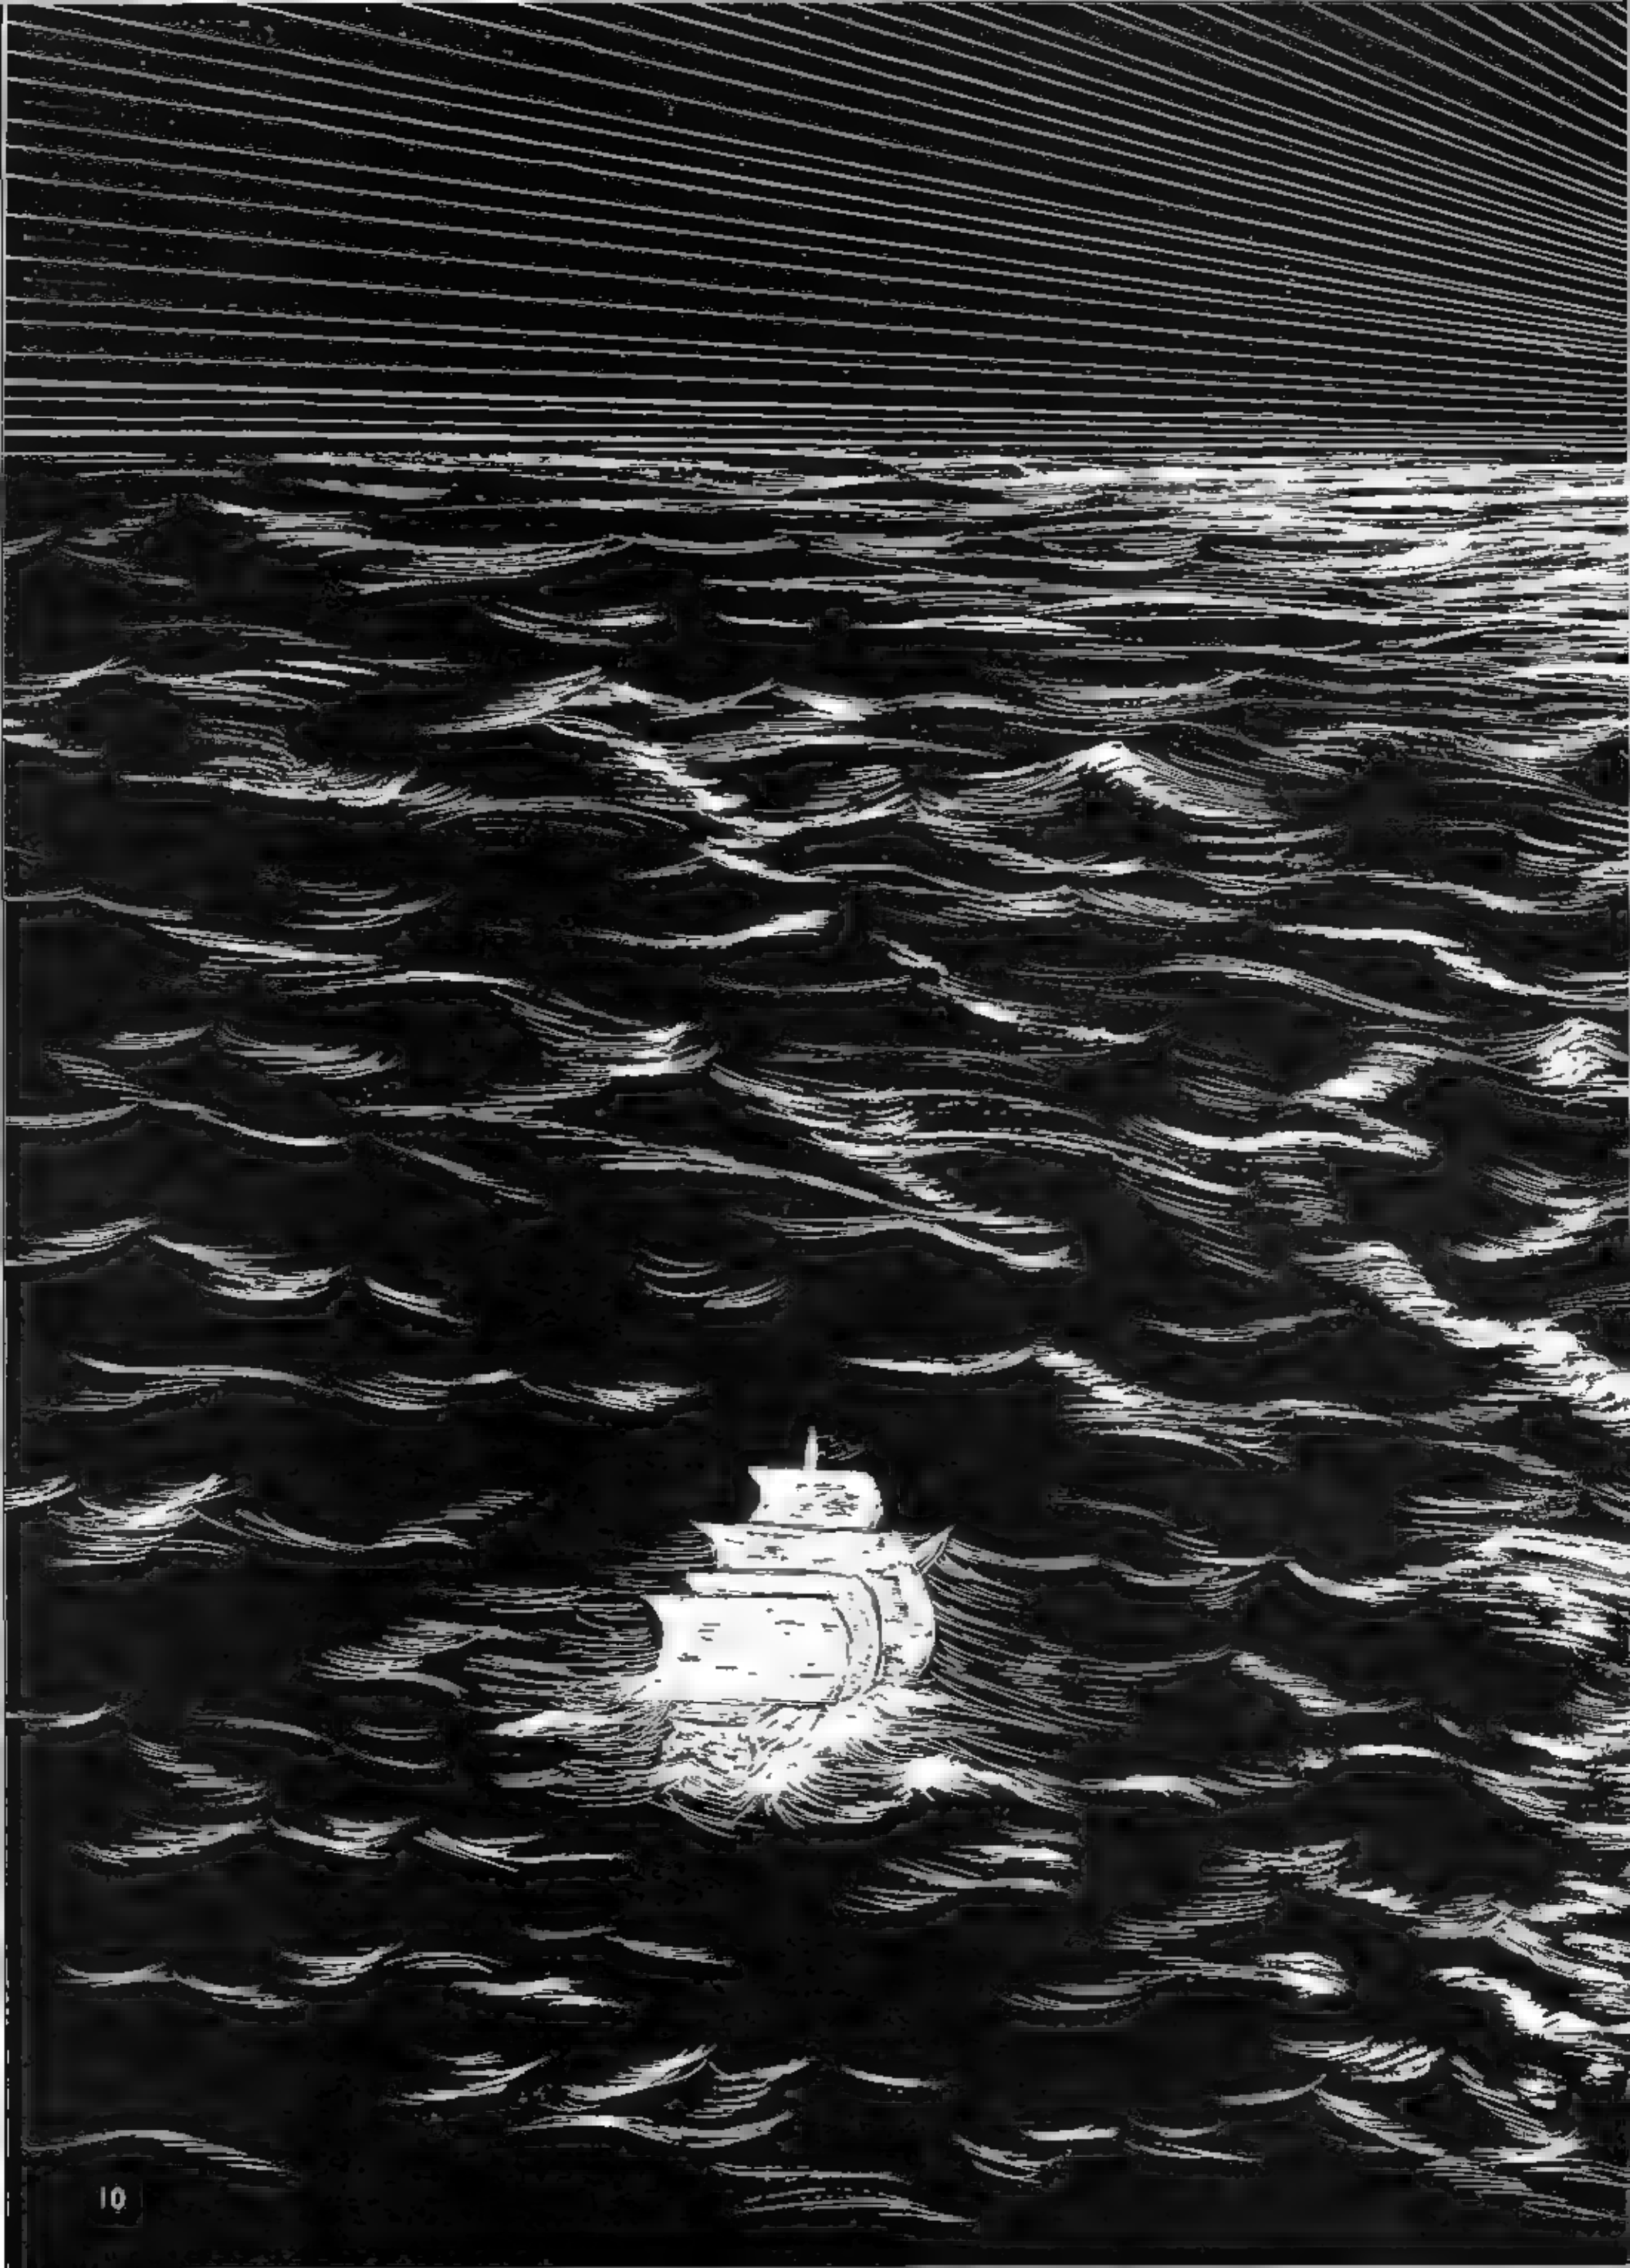

The foreword in this log of the class of 1964 speaks of dreams that have become realities. May each of you continue to realize your dreams. You have the enthusiasm of youth to help you achieve your goals, but will you remain constant in your daily reach toward your ideals? J. M. Barrie, the Scottish playwright, wrote:

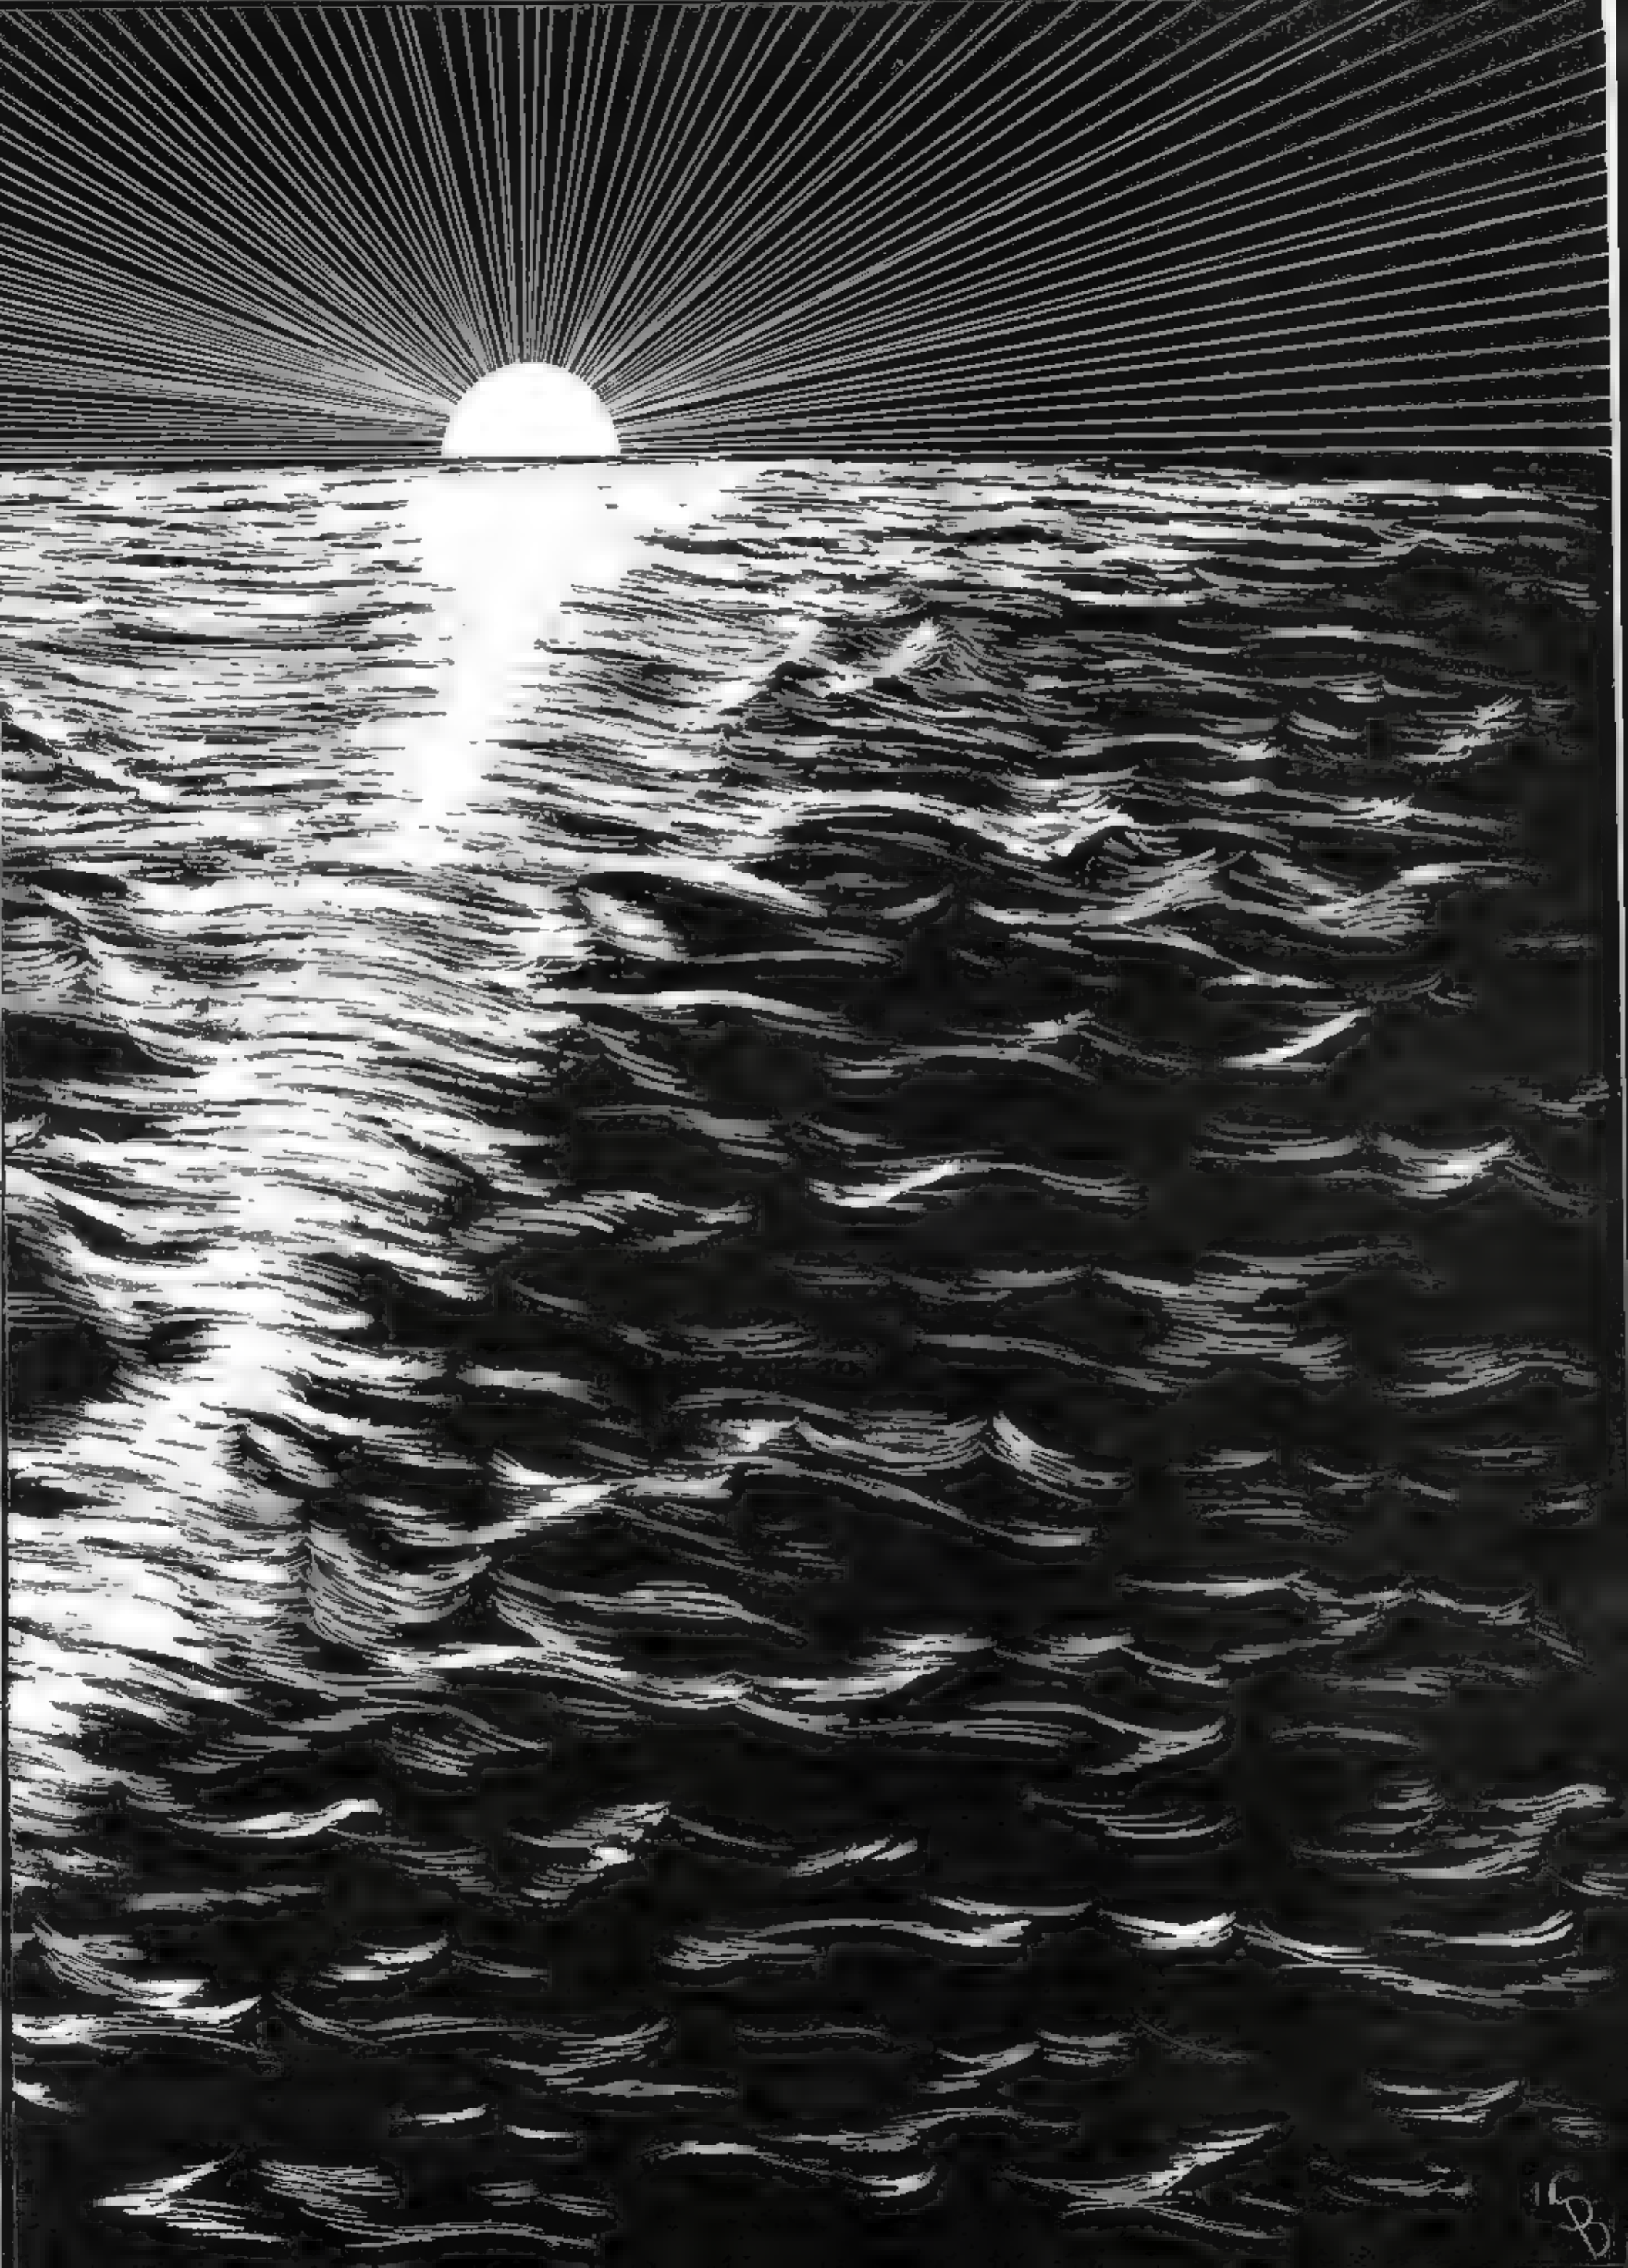

"The life of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story, and writes another, and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it."

How are you going to keep yourself on course, so that your dreams will become realities stamped on the shore of Time?

My sincere wishes to each of you.

Michael E. Hernick

Vice-Principals Administer Authority

The position of vice-principal at Oxon Hill entails a great deal of hard work, responsibility, and authority. Assisting the principal in administering school policies and procedures, Mr. Kirkland and Mr. Biscontini participate in all phases of education and activity at OHHS.

Mr. Kirkland, a member of the Oxon Hill staff for three years, has been teaching for twenty-two years. Besides teaching physical education, biology, social studies, journalism (yearbook), and core, he served as coach and guidance counselor before assuming the position of vice-principal.

Working in the field of education for seventeen years, Mr. Biscontini came to Oxon Hill for the first time in 1963. Previously he taught at Bladensburg Senior High School and served on the Board of Education.

Guidance Helps Students Adjust

The Guidance Department is a vital part of the school's administration. Miss Raum, Mrs. Everson, and Mr. Williams try to get to know the students individually and help them solve their problems whether personal, educational, or vocational. The Guidance Department tries to prepare the student to adapt and adjust to the adult world he will face when he leaves school.

Guidance counselors are ready to help students who have problems.

Math and Science Courses

Dissecting the starfish is one of the highlights of biology class

To meet the demands of our rapidly growing world, the Math and Science departments of Oxon Hill try to bring into focus the many aspects of these subjects. Students are carefully supervised and instructed by teachers who realize the necessity of a well informed citizen. Through the advanced courses of Calculus, Math Analysis, Advanced Biology, and Physics II, students are able to further their knowledge of these particular fields as well as gain college credit

Teachers Train Students in Good Citizenship

"Next in importance to freedom and justice is popular education, without which neither freedom nor justice can be properly maintained." The Social Studies department of Oxon Hill assumes the responsibility of presenting the principles of freedom and justice through our system of popular education. Students receive instruction in the government of our country, its functions and its history. A background study of the history and geography of the world receive special attention at OHHS.

Languages Aid Communication

Improved teaching methods help students learn foreign languages more efficiently than ever before. Each Spanish and French class spends one day a week in the language laboratory working to improve pronunciation. The equipment in the laboratory enables the teacher to listen to the entire class or only one student at a time without halting the rest of the class.

The laboratory class, however, does not replace the teacher. The teacher explains the grammar and idiosyncrasies of the language and acquaints the students with the customs and characteristics of the people.

Training in Vocational Skills Offered

At Oxon Hill students not only prepare for college but plan for future careers through the Home Economics and Industrial Arts departments. Girls who follow the curriculum in Home Economics receive expert training in cooking, nutrition, sewing, and home nursing, as well as household management. In the Industrial Arts department training is offered in metal and wood working, mechanical drawing and printing. All of these are designed to help young men acquire vocational skills.

Physical Education Develops Abilities

The purpose of physical education is to develop the best physical, mental, and social abilities of the individual. It provides a constructive outlet for energy and develops skills that are often needed for vocational and avocational use.

This year two new women teachers joined the physical education staff, and an advanced class was added to the program. Five physical education teachers carry the responsibility of teaching physical fitness, sportsmanship, and good coordination

Music and Art Stimulate Creativity

The aim of the Music and Art departments is to stimulate the creativity of the individual student. Through participation the two departments develop an appreciation for the fine arts.

Under the direction of Mr. Quaid, the Concert Choir performs at many school activities and this year presented the musical, Brigadoon. The band, conducted by Mr. Johnson, presented five concerts as well as performing at many school functions and taking part in various competitions.

The art classes, under the supervision of Mrs. Merriam and Mrs. Sanger, decorate the school and provide posters advertising school functions. The art students have brought many top honors to our school in county competition.

Various Services Contribute to

The library and health suite are familiar to everyone at OHHS. Before, during, and after school the library attracts the studious, the curious, and the data seeking members of the school. Mrs. Smith, the librarian, and Mrs. Garber and Mrs. Stocklinski, the clerks, help students with their questions and requests. Student library assistants check books in and out, collect fines, replace books on shelves and repair books.

The health suite is the scene of much activity during the diabetes, T.B., and audio-visual testing. Students with physical handicaps, those involved in school accidents, those who become ill while in class, as well as participants in vigorous athletic activities appreciate the effort of Mrs. Kendall and her student aides.

the Effectiveness of Our Education

The clean and orderly atmosphere at Oxon Hill which contributes to the effectiveness of its educational system is the responsibility of the cafeteria and custodial staffs. The diligent and efficient efforts of these behind-the-scene workers contribute to the comfort and pleasantness with which the students pursue their daily interests and activities. In addition to maintaining the buildings and the grounds with care throughout the year, the custodial and cafeteria staffs work to insure the success of various activities such as dances, plays, concerts, PTA meetings and banquets. We are grateful for the services rendered by these people and acknowledge their contribution to our education at OHHS.

In denial of the cheerleaders' chant, "We've got the silly, silly sophomores on our side," the youngest class at Oxon Hill this year began early in the fall to prove its worth.

Pooling their ingenuity, the sophomores produced the second place float for Homecoming. Their support of the J.V. teams demonstrated their class loyalty. Planning a successful Valentine dance was the climax of the sophomores' first year at OHHS.

A New Staff Creates a New Paper

Cooditors Ann Easton and Jane Fitzwater discuss the Searchlight.

Journalism I class spent the first days of school discussing plans for the school paper, The Searchlight. The professional look of printed type was the initial change effected. Ideas for new columns, better news coverage, and ways to appeal to a wider readership flooded the discussion.

In producing the newspaper the Searchlight staff kept students, parents, and faculty informed about class projects and club and social activities.

REPORTERS, Seated: Ivey

Cheerleaders Encourage Team

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Woodridge and Mrs. Miller, the cheerleaders encourage the students and teams at every game and pep rally of the year. Their long hours of practice are rewarded by the knowledge that they help inspire school spirit.

During the assembly that preceded the Homecoming game, the tides were turned as the cheerleaders donned football uniforms and fellows, dressed in skirts, led the cheering.

Exotic floats add much color to the Homecoming half-time activities.

Preparations for Homecoming started last summer, encompassing ten weeks and the efforts of three hundred people. Homecoming was heightened by a week of activity that included Color Day, Student and Teacher Appreciation Days, and School Spirit Day. Finally, a pep rally on Friday, September 27, sent the spirit of Oxon Hill students soaring with expectation for the next day's Homecoming game against Northwestern High School.

Under a bright sun with the entire school cheering them on, the Clippers displayed skill in assailing the Wildcats.

At half-time the majorettes and band introduced a new marching routine as a parade of floats carrying the Homecoming court circled the field. The final playing period resumed and Oxon Hill emerged triumphant.

The dance that followed later in the evening was highlighted by a variety of entertainment and the official crowning of the Homecoming queen, Diann Green.

On Saturday, September 7, the Clippers opened their 1963 gridiron season with the first of three successive nonconference games. Oxon Hill scored against Walt Whitman as a result of two passes by quarterback Gary Oden, first to Steve Hoover and then to Charlie Bolton. But the Clipper failed to make the extra points while Whitman, matching Oxon Hill in touchdowns, made one. Although we lost 13 to 12, the Clippers' defensive strength, with Don Shipp outstanding, showed much promise.

At Andover on September 14, the Clippers suffered another loss. Oxon Hill's only score came late in the fourth period when Alan Reulet ran over from two yards out. The Clippers' main weakness was their running defense, as Andover repeatedly drove up the middle.

#3 to Annapolis

The Clippers dropped their third game of the season to Annapolis Friday evening, September 20, by a score of 26-0. Nearing the goal several times, the Clippers failed to score because of loss of downs. The best effort of the night came as the Clippers drove hard to the ten-yard line, only to fumble to Annapolis. In the third quarter, a blow was struck to the team's morale when guard Jeff Nieland was injured.

Northwestern Upset

It was in the first league game of the season, September twenty-eight, the Clippers' Homecoming, that Oxon Hill faced Northwestern, the league favorites. At the end of the first quarter, a pass play put the Wildcats ahead, 6-0. But the Homecoming, spirited the Clippers on as Alan Reulet intercepted a Northwestern pass on Oxon Hill's own 19-yard line. The team moved the next 19 yards quickly and Charlie Bolton crashed through for the score from the 2 yard line. With Jim Lacy's extra point and a safety by Richard Luurtsema, the Clippers jumped out in front with a score of 9-6. Northwestern then took to the air and scored with an 18-yard pass play, gaining the lead and making the score 12 to 9 at the half.

In the third quarter, the Clippers again scored, only to be called back on an assistance penalty. But the team was out to prove what it could do, and Bolton obliged by an 18-yard run to the goal line. The extra point was again made by Lacy, bringing the Clippers' score up to 16. Taking their turn in the exchange, Northwestern forged ahead to score again against Oxon Hill. The first was penalized because of a foul, but on his second try, Lacy made the extra point. Alan Reulet and Don Shipp led the Clippers' defensive squad as they kept the Wildcats from scoring. The gun sounded: the Clippers had won their first Homecoming game in two years.

A week later on October fifth, the Clippers battled the High Point Eagles for every available yard, but were unable to score. High Point, scoring twice, won 14-0.

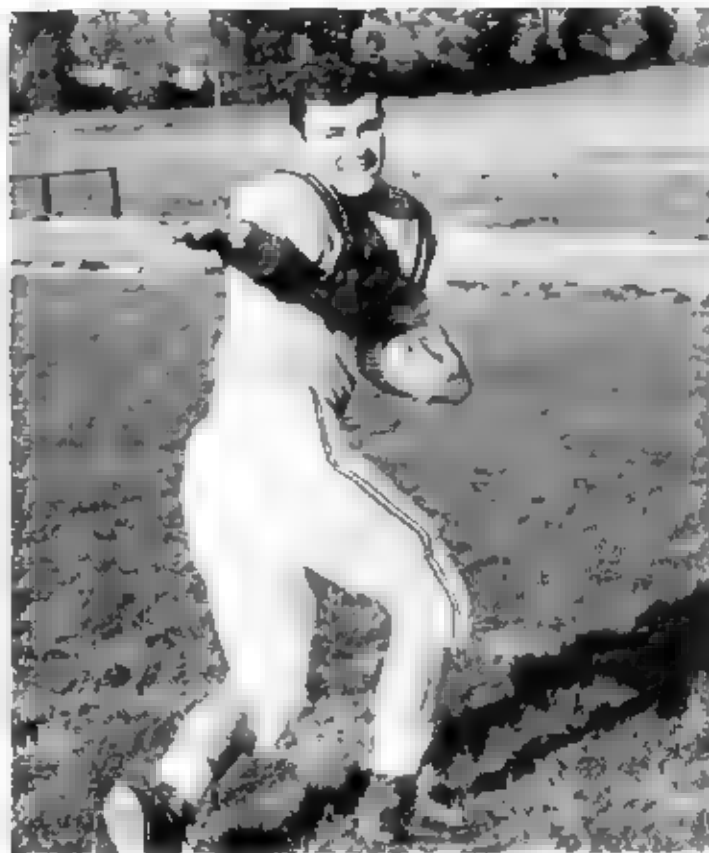

Seeking revenge for the loss to High Point the week before, Oxon Hill moved fast against Bladensburg and scored early in the first quarter when Charlie Bolton made a touchdown from the two-yard line. Later, Bolton scored again from the ten-yard line. But the efforts proved futile since the Clippers failed to make the extra points. Bladensburg, matching the Clippers in touchdowns, made both of theirs and won 14-12.

The following Wednesday night, the Clippers met the league leaders, DuVal, in Northwestern's stadium. Starting in the second quarter, DuVal took control of the ball, scoring 27 points. The Clippers trailed with 13. Oxon Hill's touchdowns were made by Charlie Bolton and Richard Luurtsema.

The Clippers next faced and shut out Fairmont Heights, 16-0. A safety, plus two extra points by Lacy, accounted for four points of the score. Alan Reulet scored both of the touchdowns.

It was at Suitland's Homecoming game that the Clippers charged onto a field that should have been 60 yards shorter. The game was a tug-of-war played almost entirely between Oxon Hill's and Suitland's 30-yard lines. The game ended with 0-0 on the scoreboard. During the game, Terry Walker was injured and in the fourth quarter Gary Oden was badly shaken up on a play.

In the last game of the season the Clippers battled the Surrattsville Hornets. A strong defensive game was exhibited by both sides until Gary Oden uncorked a 20-yard pass-run play to end Richard Luurtsema for the touchdown. Lacy's extra point was wide, making the score 6-0.

During the next three quarters, the teams exchanged the ball several times but neither scored. But late in the fourth quarter, however, the Hornets pushed to inside the Oxon Hill 10-yard line. The Clippers defense held out four times against the Hornet onslaught. On the fifth it failed, however, and Surrattsville scored. Confident of victory, the Hornets elected to run the extra point, but the Clippers stopped them dead. There was just enough time left for the kickoff and the game was over, with Oxon Hill 6, Surrattsville 6.

Thus ended the 1963 season. The record for Oxon Hill was 2-6-2 overall and 2-3-2 for the Prince George's County League.

"Thieves' Carnival"

In traditional manner the Oxon Hill High School Drama Club played to a full house for its presentation of Jean Anouilh's "Thieves' Carnival." The tribulations of three gay thieves in their attempt to relieve the wealthy Lady Hurf of her fortune created a light and merry atmosphere for the play.

Dedicated enthusiasm combined with long after school and week-end rehearsals under the direction of Miss Roberta Hughes turned the inanimate script into three lively acts. The successful performances of November first and second were possible only through the unified efforts of all involved. Nearly fifty persons gathered or made costumes and props, learned how to apply stage makeup, drilled in lighting and sound techniques, and executed a clever publicity campaign.

"Remember, 'It's magic time'," smiles the director, Miss Roberta Hughes

"Care for a cigar?" Peterbono asks Hector, a fellow thief.

Presents Fall Concert

To the strains of "The Chimes of Liberty" march and the rhythmic melodies of "Mr. Lucky," the Oxon Hill Band ushered in the fall season with its annual Pops Concert. With a range of musical scores from "West Side Story" to the "Poet and Peasant Overture," the band played to an enthusiastic audience that filled the school's auditorium.

Directed by Mr. C. William Johnson, the seventy-member band performs at games and assemblies for the students, as well as demonstrating its talents in several concerts throughout the year.

Each spring, concert band members take part in Annual County Band Festival. Individuals are given an opportunity to play before other young musicians.

In May the Lions Club sponsors an area-wide band festival in which the Oxon Hill Band participates, hoping to uphold their excellent record.

The Trumpet Trio plays "Carnival Theme and Variations" at the Pops Concert.

Through the National Honor Society, recognition is given to students who have realized the fundamental objectives for which a school is instituted. To the Honor Society, education is not excellence in one field but the product of achievement in four dimensions of life: leadership, character, scholarship, and service.

The honor accorded to membership in this society lends a serious tone to each induction. For the students and faculty of OHHS, the ceremony of November 22, 1963, will hold special significance. For at the time students of Oxon Hill received acknowledgement for leadership, character, scholarship, and service, the President of the United States had been robbed of these same qualities. The assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy carved an unfillable hole in the pride of the nation, and sadness and uncertainty encompassed the American people. The thoughts of an entire school and an entire nation rested on the horror of the event, as in tragedy they were united.

Seated: treasurer Linda Banister, recording secretary Suzie Rodriguez, corresponding secretary Miriam Ruchwarger, vice president Cathy Boswell; standing: parliamentarian David Chance, president Donald Kester.

The Student Council provides liaison between the students and the administration. At the weekly meetings representatives from each homeroom discuss projects and policies concerning school government. Recommendations are submitted to the administration for discussion and resolution. Decisions are then relayed to the representatives, who report to their homerooms. The Student Council sponsors several social and fund-raising activities such as the Sadie Hawkins Dance, held November 27. Under the auspices of Marryin' Sam, many couples were united in "holey matrimony." They celebrated with doughnuts, cotton candy, and apple cider from an authentic barrel. A foot-stompin' hootenanny ended the dance. Later in the year, the Student Council organizes the Christmas Dance and the spring Carnival.

Book Fair Helps Fill Shelves

John Lane and Elwyn Dolecek sign up for new books which will soon be in circulation.

Always willing to lend a helping hand, the student library assistants volunteer their services before and after school to help students in their selection of books. Student assistants work behind the desk checking books in and out, replacing them on shelves and repairing damaged books. The attractive bulletin boards in the library, changed monthly, are evidence of the creative skills of these library assistants.

Through the week of November 11 to 19 Oxon Hill High School held its annual Book Fair. Sponsored by the PTA, FTA, National Honor Society, and the student library assistants, the Book Fair provided an opportunity for the library to add over one hundred new books to its shelves.

As the largest class in the school, the Juniors proved that quality and quantity can go hand in hand through their activities during the year. Placing first in the float competition at Homecoming they showed ingenuity, creativity, and manual dexterity in the idea and execution of the float. The arrival of the long-awaited class rings boosted their school spirit.

Sponsored by Mrs. Kirchner and Mr. Kadala the junior class rounded out the year with a successful Junior Prom.

A pep rally preceded the basketball season this year when the Varsity cheerleaders staged an entertaining skit to introduce the basketball teams. Accompanying the introduction of the teams, the new J.V. cheerleaders made their first official appearance. Joining forces, the two cheering squads led the school in several cheers to arouse school spirit for the evening's game with Bladensburg Senior High

Basketball Team Enjoys

On Friday, December 6, Oxon Hill opened the season with a home game against Bladensburg. The Clippers started well against the defending league champs and at the half trailed by only two points. But in the third quarter the Clippers showed the overanxiousness that would characterize that period in many games to follow. As the game continued into the last period the Clippers fell behind to lose 44-58.

At Surrattsville on December 10 the Clippers met with their second defeat.

Winning Season

Leading through most of the game, the Clippers were unable to withstand the Hornets' fast close, which tied the score at 44-44, sending the game into overtime. In the overtime Ted Westwood was the only Clipper to score as the game ended 48-50 in favor of Surrattsville.

On Friday the thirteenth the Clippers' luck changed. Taking the lead from the start the Clippers held on to defeat the Rams of Suitland. In the fourth period Suitland rallied but could not shake the Clippers. Here two mainstays of Oxon Hill's own brand of offensive defense made their bow. Steve Hoover scored 15 points, and Ted Westwood, who fought a one-man team in the person of Suitland's Walter Boyce, added 12. The final score was 46-38

Hoover rebounding. The team drove ahead 50-48, tied 50-50, moved ahead again 52-50, tied 52-52, fell behind 52-54. With forty-five seconds remaining, Ted Westwood, who had been out since the second quarter, returned to the game. In thirteen seconds he managed to be fouled and, making both shots, tied the score at 54. In the overtime Oxon Hill had a 56-55 lead at the two-second mark. Then Don Moore received and made 1 and 1, securing a 58-55 victory over Northwestern.

Two easy wins followed. A home game against High Point on January 7 ended 64-40. La Plata too was trounced 84-51, making it the sixth in a row for the Clippers.

Though a loss, the game against Fairmont Heights demonstrated better than any other the perseverance of the team and the ability of one of its members, Mike Seganish, who scored 22 points. In the first half the Clippers kept their usual one-point lead, 34-33. But overanxiousness struck again and Fairmont Heights soared to 55 over the Clippers' 46. The first score of the fourth period was a backboard by Mike Seganish and for four solid minutes the Clippers repeated that motif, while holding Fairmont scoreless. Then Fairmont broke through and were victorious by nine—Oxon Hill 60, Fairmont Heights 69.

Oxon Hill faced DuVal on Tuesday, the 17th. During the first half DuVal's effective use of a full court press in the final seconds of each quarter cramped the Clippers' style giving DuVal an 11 point edge. Coming back the second half eager to win, the Clippers picked up momentum, finally gaining the lead at the 1:20 mark. Don Moore and Nick Preble were instrumental in this third quarter push to 55 against DuVal's 52. A see-saw battle followed in the fourth quarter. At the three-minute mark, with Ted Westwood out because of fouls, DuVal took the first lead. But it didn't take long for the Clippers to adjust to Don Moore's leadership and with the final seconds the score was tied at 69. DuVal again attempted a press, managing only to foul Nick Preble, who made the first of 1 and 1. The second rebounded high and was snatched by Moore who swished the final score to 72 over DuVal's 69.

Larry Smith and Ted Westwood led the Clippers to an easy 62-43 win at Central on December 20.

At Northwestern on January 3, the Clippers earned their hardest victory. The half-time score was 28-27 for Oxon Hill. A third quarter lull dragged the Clippers under until a Hoover-Moore combination spurred them on to recoup all but a point of their loss. In period four the combination continued with Moore shooting and

The Clippers' easiest win followed on January 21 against Woodward Prep. The whole team got to play as Woodward was trampled 78-25.

The Clippers dropped their second game with the league-leading Mustangs on Friday, January 24. Several times the Clippers came within striking range but a twelve-point lead built up by Bladensburg in the first half proved too rough to overcome. The Mustangs won going away 74-87.

Thirsting for revenge on Tuesday, the 28th, the Clippers sailed to their eighth victory by edging favored Surrattsville in the last quarter. The Hornets secured the lead in the middle of the third with a 45-47 score and continued to dominate the rest of that period. Then in the fourth Ted Westwood and Mike Seganish combined for 16 points. The Hornets got stung 53-62.

The Ram's Walter Boyce led last-place Suitland to an upset victory over the Clippers on Friday, January 31. Until the fourth quarter the game seemed to belong to Oxon Hill but an insurmountable Suitland blitz toppled the Clippers 50-56.

On Tuesday, February 4, underrated DuVal reversed an earlier loss as they won a see-saw battle 63-65.

Home again on Friday, February 7, the Clippers took the first point and remained unhindered by Central. In a fast first quarter assault Oxon Hill took a commanding 19-9 lead and doubled that span as the whole team got onto the scoreboard in the 71-51 game

In a game strongly resembling the first, Oxon Hill met Northwestern on Friday the 14th. The Clippers and the Wildcats were neck and neck throughout the game and the fourth period ended 51—all. The hero of the overtime was Mike Seganish, who in the final seconds boosted the score to 54, topping Northwestern's 53.

Oxon Hill's eleventh victory came on Monday, February 17, on High Point's court. Taking an 18-3 lead in the first quarter, the Clippers were untouchable, winning 61-45.

On February 21 the Clippers fought the best in the metropolitan area—DeMatha. The first half play evidenced a defense not used to a team of DeMatha's ability, but the Clipper offense did well and the half ended 27-29. During the third period, in a relentless demoralizing attack, DeMatha scored 21 points to Oxon Hill's 9. Then, early in period four, Steve Hoover and Ted Westwood led a Clipper rally which scored 18 points, allowing DeMatha only 8, but eight was four too many; the mast fell 54-58.

Victory in Northwestern Game

Oxon Hill, eager for a victory after the near win with DeMatha, met the Fairmont Hornets. The game was fast and furious from start to finish. After trailing by five points at the end of the first period, the Clippers came on strong to lead at the half, 32-31. It was point for point with Oxon Hill one up until the fourth quarter when the Hornets drove hard, ending up on the winning side of a 65-69 score. Starring for the Clippers were Nick Preble, Mike Seganish and Ted Westwood, each with 16, and Don Moore with 13.

As snow fell to slush on the night of the 28th, the last game of the season was played against LaPlata at Lackey High. A slow start evidenced a 3-10 score in the first quarter. The Clippers' pace picked up though, and by the half the team had fought its way to a 16-19 score. Period three the team sprang to life to lead briefly 27-26, but a charged up LaPlata team proved too much to overcome as the Clippers dropped the last game of the season 37-43.

Those Who Willingly Serve

Students develop qualities of leadership in the Service clubs of OHHS.

Members of the school bank urge students to develop financial responsibility through saving. The bank's affiliation with the American Savings and Loan Company lends dignity and efficiency to this organization as it serves Oxon Hill.

The Helmsmen prepare for assemblies and other activities by setting up chairs. It is their responsibility to keep events running smoothly for these assemblies by directing and seating the students.

The Oxon Hill squadron of the CAP provides its cadets with aerospace, military, and leadership training. In addition to the vital role they assume in our community and country, the Civil Air Patrol displays dedication by raising and lowering the flag each day.

The Traffic Squad members work not only at lessening congestion in the corridors during the day but also serve as ushers for school functions.

Audio-visual operators enable classes to use the school's audio-visual equipment. Qualified to operate all film and opaque projectors along with phonographs and tape recorders, this group assists the teachers in carrying on lessons in which audio-visual instruments are used.

Deeper Understanding

Many students of Oxon Hill have gained membership in various seminars. The Science and Math seminars are school-sponsored while the History and English seminars are county-wide organizations. These select groups strive to further knowledge and understanding of their respective fields. Films and discussions are a major program of the seminar meetings; however, guest speakers are often invited to lecture on topics of interest.

Students who are undecided about a career, along with those who have already made plans for vocations after graduation, may learn about many professions through school clubs such as The Future Teachers of America, The Future Homemakers of America, The Future Business Leaders of America. These organizations offer members an insight into various occupations while they serve the school.

Besides sponsoring a Student Teach Day when students take command of classes, the FTA helps teachers with grading exams and other papers.

FHA members, in exploration of the many phases of homemaking, serve as hostesses for several affairs during the school year, as well as presenting a fashion show of the clothing made by the girls.

Girls in the FNA help in the school's health suite. They also volunteer the skills they have acquired under the direction of Mrs. Kendall to local hospitals.

In the FBLA members become acquainted with business practices. The girls in this club serve as secretaries to the departmental chairmen of the school.

Bowling Club Strikes Again

Among the clubs organized for the enjoyment of the students are the Duck Pin and the Ten Pin bowling clubs. The spirit of competition runs high as the teams of the two clubs compete every Monday and Thursday afternoon. The Duck Pin Club is sponsored by Mr. J. Matthews and Mr. Vest. The Ten Pin Club is sponsored by Mr. Vest only.

Log Staff Launches Innovations

The Journalism II class worked hard to produce a distinguished annual for the students and faculty of Oxon Hill. Before actual work began on the yearbook, the staff spent considerable time planning a new format for the 1964 Clipper's Log. A major addition to this year's Log is a spring supplement which includes the events and activities of the final quarter of the term.

Literary Editor Janice Butler discusses a problem in copy standards with the literary staff, Barbara Bush, Bob Zeek, and Marsha Muir.

Language Clubs

The language program at Oxon Hill Senior High inspires in the students a desire to learn more about the culture of foreign lands. Thus membership in the Spanish, French, and Latin clubs has been unusually large this year. The variety of activities at each meeting has maintained student interest.

When not celebrating holidays in native tradition, each club is involved in studying the customs of the different countries. Games and dances as well as films and discussions create the social and informative atmosphere surrounding the foreign language clubs.

Bible Club Analyzes Belief and Doctrine

The Bible Club, sponsored by Mrs. Glenda Williams, is unlike any other club in the school in that meetings are open to any student to attend any number of times throughout the year. Discussions enter the fields of Bible analysis, doctrine, and the personal beliefs of individual students. Panel discussions evoke the thoughts and opinions of those who participate in the Bible Club.

Sophomores Provide Romantic Atmosphere

With escort Alan Reulet, Donna Schwab holds the bouquet presented to her as queen of the Valentine Dance

On February 15 the Sophomore-sponsored Valentine Dance was held in the multipurpose room. Red and white cupids and hearts provided a romantic atmosphere as the couples danced to the dreamy music of the Nightowls. Donna Schwab was crowned queen and received the members of her court: Heidi Boettcher, Donna McNeil, Sylvia Morelock, and Shirley Pierce. "A Sentimental Journey," the theme of the dance, was presented in barbershop quartet fashion to entertain the queen and her court.

Top Ten Recognized

The faculty and PTA of OHHS believe that recognition should be given to the students who maintain a high scholastic standing throughout three years of high school.

Every year Seniors with a scholastic average in the first ten percent of the graduating class are honored by a Top Ten Dinner attended by the students and their parents. After dinner each student is presented with a certificate of merit and a scholastic achievement pin of black and gold.

Dr. Dolecek, president of the PTA awards Jane Fitzwater a certificate of merit.

At the dinner attended by students and their parents, Mr. Hernick presents a scholastic achievement pin to Kathy Clifford.

Three At Eight Awarded Top Honors

"Do you know you're very lovely?" asks Prince Simon of Princess Camilla

President Hudson nods approvingly as Agnes finds her Appollo.

Three At Eight opened on Friday, February 28, for a triumphant two-night run. The first of the three plays was Jean Giraudoux's Apollo of Bellac. With the vanity of man for a theme, the play demonstrated the success of a young lady who says to every man she meets, "How handsome you are!"

Aria Da Capo, an allegory by Edna St. Vincent Millay, presents a disturbing drama within a farce. For a game, two shepherds build a wall between them and find that suspicion prevents them from tearing it down. And so as one is strangled, the other is poisoned surviving the first just long enough to wish that they had made a song about a sheep that wanted to be a shepherd.

Once Upon . . . is the time of a typical prince-princess story called The Ugly Duckling. From this A.A. Milne creates an entertaining one-act comedy which, in the hands of Miss Roberta Hughes and her players, won the Maryland Speech and Drama Association Festival of Plays on March 7. The story tells of a princess who was beautiful but nobody realized it. Playing the Queen was Leslie Lumpkin who received the best supporting actress award at the Festival.

Science Fair Reflects Individual Abilities

The seventh annual Science Fair at Oxon Hill was held February 28, 29, and March 1, in the gymnasium. Ninety-five projects were exhibited in the fields of chemistry, physics, botany, mathematics, agriculture, engineering, and architecture. The displays were judged by doctors and scientists from the Naval Research Laboratory, and agriculture experts from Beltsville and the University of Maryland.

Charlotte Burnett was awarded First Grand Prize for the second consecutive year for her project in agriculture. Sophomores took the next two places in the competition as James Harper received second place honor for his project in physics, and John Harris won third prize with his mathematics.

Many projects were given honorable mention and these, along with the grand prize winners, were selected to compete in the Prince Georges County Fair.

Arriving by busloads on March 4 from neighboring elementary schools, tiny tots piled into the gymnasium to enjoy a concert by the National Symphony Orchestra.

Such old favorites as "Knick-Knack, Paddy-Whack" and "London Bridge" were greeted with enthusiasm and prompted a sing-along.

The Tiny Tot's Concert ended on a lively note with a jazz piece, making full use of the percussion family.

Young and Old

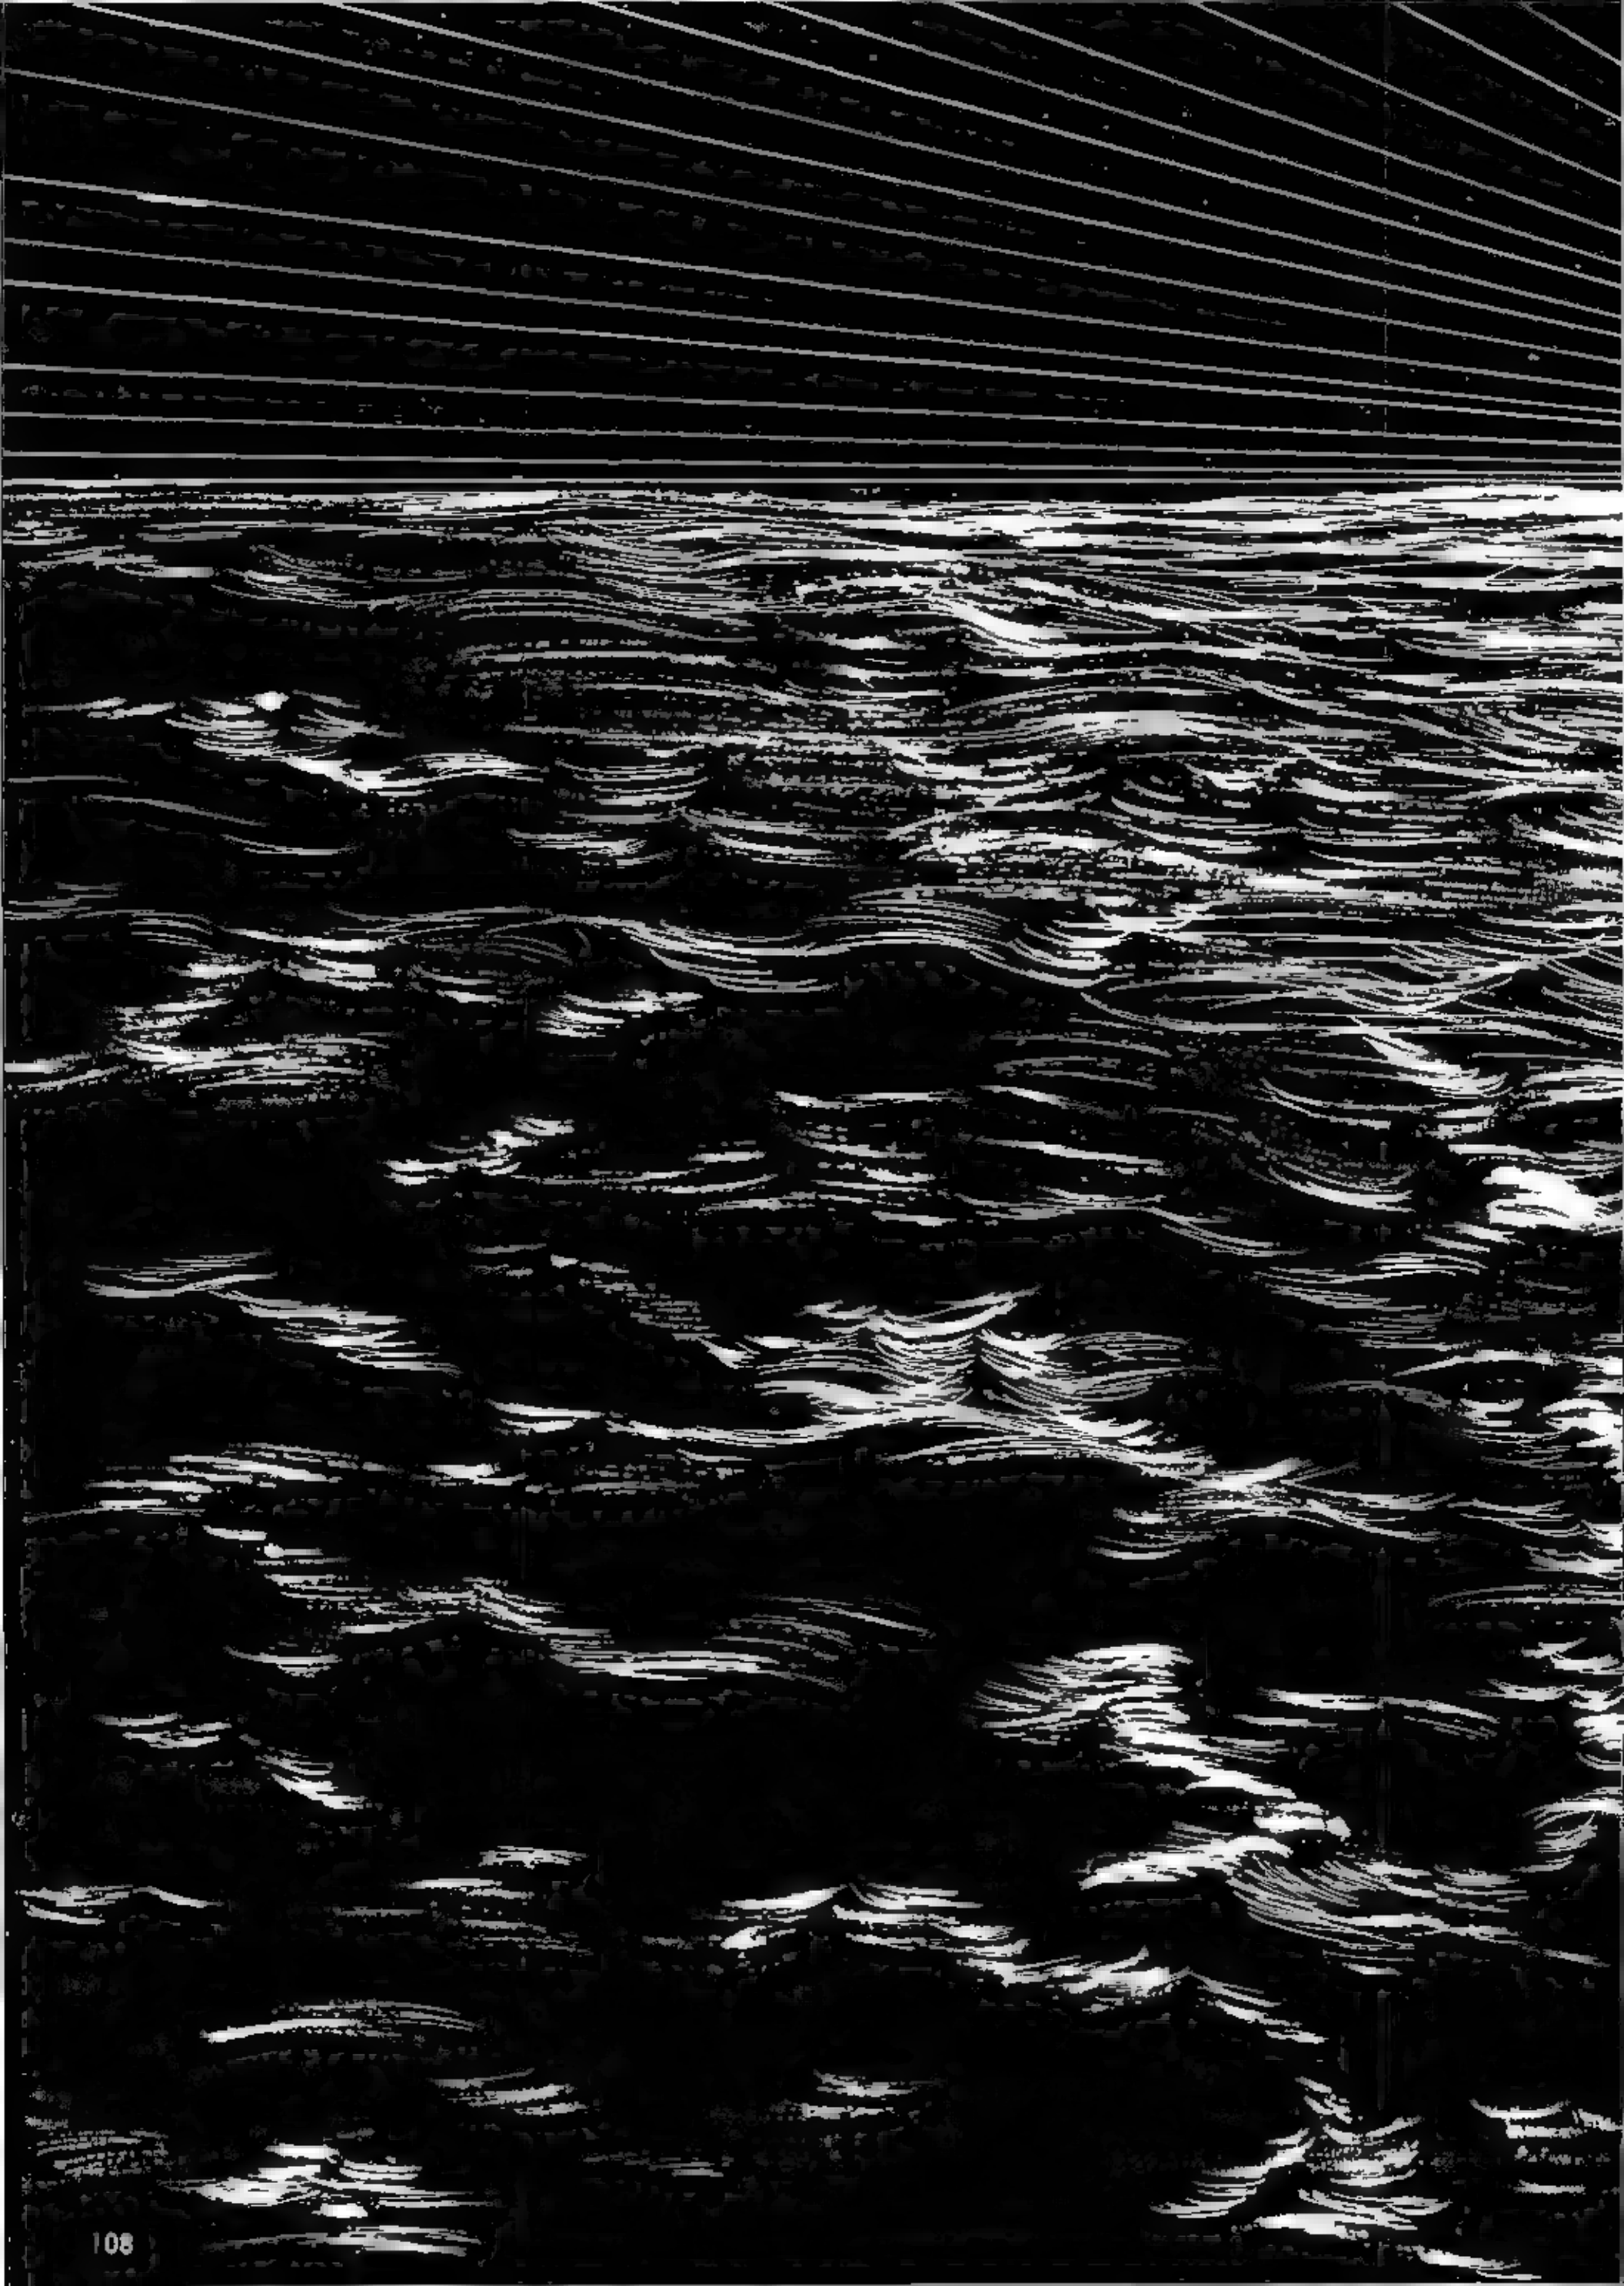

At their annual symphonic concert on Friday, March 13, the band entertained a record crowd. Music of the romantic period such as Franck's "Symphony in D Minor," the lilting "Suite Francaise," and Verdi's "La Forza del Destino" dominated the program. Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," a suite in three parts ranging from the haunting "Old Castle" to the agitated "Hut of Baba Yaga" and the "Great Gate of Kiev," ended the evening on a majestic note.

and Officers Guide Senior Class

The doors of Oxon Hill opened for the first time to the members of our graduating class in 1961. Awed by the new classrooms and unfamiliar hallways, we began our Sophomore year consoled only by the fact that even then there was a class below us. A Freshman class was enrolled in OHHS that year, giving us a prestige generally unknown to a Sophomore student.

It was hard to get used to our environment but, with the coming of fall activities, much of our attention was focused on preparation for our first Homecoming. Our victory over Surrattsville gave us the encouragement we needed for a successful year at Oxon Hill. The successful Valentine Dance gave us personal confidence and we were ready to meet our Junior year.

Feeling quite at home as Juniors we began the year with the election of our class officers. We had a bonfire at our Homecoming that year, the year that the Oxon Hill football team was defeated by DuVal, 20-0. Although our class fared poorly in the All Sports Night competition, true victory was ours when we beat the Seniors in the annual Jr-Sr. Basketball game. Excitement reached a peak the day we received our class rings. Finally, in formal gowns and tuxedos we waltzed to the melody of "Moon River," at our Junior Prom. We were sad yet eager, for our Junior year was ending and we would return in September to assume the coveted status of Seniors.

We were determined to make our last year at Oxon Hill significant. During the first weeks after the summer vacation, we crowded the Senior bench, enjoying the novelty of our new privileges. Our mornings and lunch breaks were spent rallying for our class and marching for senior privileges. In October we marched again for the UNICEF drive. In addition to our studies our year was filled with college and job interviews, ordering graduation pictures and announcements, and preparing for the spring activities.

The term passed quickly and as we danced at our "Promenade Finale," wrote messages in each other's yearbooks, and finally stood on the platform in our caps and gowns, we realized that as we received our diplomas, one way of life would end and a new one begin.

We Pause to Remember

JOAN IRENE SCHMINKY

Those of us who knew Joan were saddened to hear of her death on Sunday, August 11, 1963. Joan died following an operation to remove a brain tumor. Few of us were aware of her serious condition because Joan, a tiny, pert, and attractive brunette, seldom revealed her troubles, preferring to disrupt her classmates' reveries with witty observations and laughter. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Schminky and eldest of five children, Joan was born on February 6, 1946 in North Africa. After living in Washington, D.C. for two years, her family moved to Indianhead, Maryland, where she attended Indianhead Elementary School and Lackey Junior-Senior High School. She came to Oxon Hill Senior High for her junior year. Though Joan was not graduated with us this year, her remarkable presence has been felt and recorded. Her courage was a rare quality to be found in one so young, and her exuberance was an inspiration to those of us who remain.

Danny Moffett presses on to the finish of the 440-yard run

Athletic practice began this year in March to prepare a successful Track Team. Under the direction of Coach Stickney and Mr. Droze, boys practiced daily getting into condition and trying out for positions on the Track Team. The team competed at ten meets in the 60-yard dash, 600-yard run, 1000-yard run, one and two-mile relays, 880-yard relay, high jump and the shot put

ODE TO THE SENIOR BENCH

The Senior bench has come to mean
 A great variety of things:

The morning meetings of our class
 To foil underclassman sass;

Assembly of the lunchtime squad
 Which congregates fourth period;

A treasured seat with friends to share,
 Or better yet, make that a pair,

Familiar host to idle talk,
 Objective of a careless walk,

A status symbol, calm retreat,
 Proud throne of victory complete,

A piece of turf to call our own—
 A bright and shining pleasure dome

These thoughts remain to stir our hearts,
 Our memories on homeward wings.

CLASS OF '64

Karen, You're very sweet and it has been nice knowing
 you. Good luck always,
 Pat Tidwell

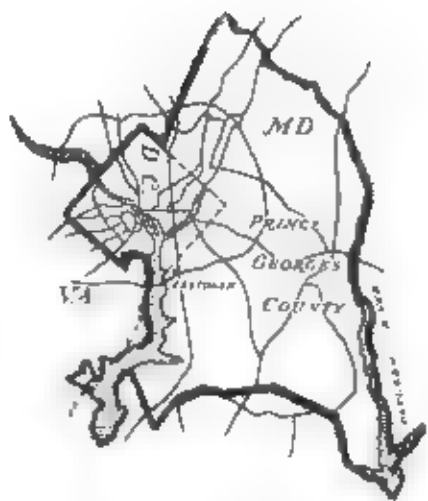

Dear Karen -

Everything has come up so graduation, etc and I forgot that in a short weeks I'll be

you and all our work behind but "shall never forget where I am just suggest to me how much we all days at our school and best friend and I'm glad we got on

The textbooks are gone, the tickets and programs taken down, and the typewriter is idle. The cap and gown will be returned, the announcements and pictures put away, and the bookshelf filled again. The excitement of graduation lingers, traces of the past year return in waves of nostalgia, and recent events are already memories to be cherished. Soon we will be engaged in new activities, but now while we have the time, let us remember.

is the nicest girl at O.H.H.S. I can remember you.

Karen, Luck
Best of luck to a
